VII. How long will the Bank process data?

Your personal data will be processed for a period which is justified by the pursuit of the purposes indicated in paragraph 5, i.e. for a period of 6 years from the date of its receipt by the Bank

VIII. Know your rights vis-à-vis the Bank.

You have the right to:

- request from the Bank access to personal data concerning you and
- have your personal data rectified when it is inaccurate, and further
- in cases provided for by law, request deletion of data or
- in cases provided for by law, request the restriction of data processing,
- object to the processing of data in cases provided for by law. The objection will be considered by the Bank, provided that if the objection relates to data processing on the grounds of legitimate interests, we will examine whether there are overriding legitimate grounds that may exceptionally justify the processing. An objection may concern a specific purpose of data processing. The objection to the processing of data for marketing purposes will always be upheld by the Bank, unless at the same time you maintain your other consents or the consent to the processing of data for marketing purposes or if you grant such consents in the course of reviewing the objection or at a later time.
- You have the right to data portability or to obtain a copy of your data, except that this right must not adversely affect the rights and freedoms of others, including trade secrets or intellectual property; as far as the request to provide your data directly to another controller is concerned, this right will be exercised to the extent technically possible. The first copy of data is free of charge. For the transfer of data under other laws, e.g. the Banking Act, it may be necessary to obtain the consent of the Client or another person or to fulfil other conditions required by these laws. The right to data portability applies to data processed automatically.

IX. Is the provision of data a statutory or contractual requirement?

The provision of data is voluntary, however, it is necessary in order to process payments for transactions made by you via the imoje Service.
